Todd E. Macaluso is a nationally prominent lawyer, and was the lead attorney in the diet pill litigation against ephedrine manufacturers such as Metabolife, Twin Labs, Inc., Cytodyne Technologies, Inc. and Muscletech. He has settled over 100 injury and death cases and tried and settled 4 class actions. One trial against Cytodyne Technologies, Inc. resulted in a $28 million verdict. In this powerful interview, he discusses a recent jury verdict (<http://www.lawyersusaonline.com/index.cfm/archive/view/id/432610>) in the amount of $55.6 Million dollars against San Diego Gas & Electric Company for the utility company negligently failing to light a utility tower on Camp Pendleton. Because the tower was unlighted, four Marines died when their Huey helicopter collided with the tower during a nighttime training mission. He also represented Baltimore Oriole Pitcher Steve Bechler who died of heat stroke caused by Xenadrine RFA-1, a performance enhancing diet pill manufactured by Cytodyne Technologies, Inc. Todd has given sworn testimony before the United States Congress, House Government Affairs Committee regarding the dangers of ephedrine as used in diet pills. As a result of his efforts, ephedrine was banned in the United States by the Food and Drug Administration in 2003-following the verdicts, settlements and testimony given to Congress in connection with the national diet pill litigation he commenced 5 years earlier. Todd has given testimony before the United States Congress in the Internet pharmacy litigation in which he was integrally involved. He has been interviewed over 100 times by national and local television stations including NBC Today Show, ABC Good Morning America, Larry King Live, Sixty Minutes, The O'Reilly Factor and many other stations.

In addition to representing clients, Todd is a guest professor at the University of San Diego School of Law and teaches evidence and complex litigation courses. He is also an avid pilot with over 8000 flying hours.

Jeffrey L. Kodroff concentrates his practice in complex antitrust, securities and consumer litigation. He was among the first attorneys to represent clients in litigation against national health maintenance organizations (HMOs). He has brought actions against various HMO's in cases of bait and switch, false advertising, and ERISA violations, and is currently leading a number of cases alleging fraud by drug manufacturers. In this interview, he analyzes the crucial issues involving pharmaceutical pricing (AMP/AWP) and the impact these practices have on the public.

Jeffrey's past experience also includes handling corporate transactions, and complex commercial and securities litigation for the Harrisburg law firm of McNees, Wallace & Nurick. He is admitted to practice in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the United States District Courts for the Middle and Eastern Districts of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and American Bar Associations. He also serves on the advisory board for the Bureau of National Affairs Class Action Litigation Report. A graduate of LaSalle University, where he earned his undergraduate degree in finance (magna cum laude, 1986), Jeffrey received his law degree from Temple University School of Law (1989).
